First unpack carton carefully, arranging parts safely in your working area.

Unpack and arrange all parts.

Feed the tubing attached to the top piece through the opening as shown above.

Set the top section of the bamboo into place by lowering and turning to lock in place.

Set the bamboo tray into place as shown above left. Carefully set the "tipping" bamboo place into the holder as shown above right. You may need to do some slight adjusting in this step to get the tipping rhythm just right.

Place the bamboo mallet in the bottom bowl to catch the final spill. It will help to control any potential splashing.

Connect the tubing to the pump. Adjust the pump to full strength. If splash is a concern, adjust the flow control as needed.

Place the pump inside the reservoir being certain it is fully submersed, sitting flat and the tubing is not kinked.

Install the pump access door by sliding it into place.

Final assembly should look like this →

Now simply fill with clean water and plug into a grounded GFCI outlet
